WELCOME TO THE MALL NETWORK SUMMIT!

Dear Guests,

We have an exciting program today that will guide you through the many layers of influence that Multi-Service Centers, coupled with permanent housing, can have in a community. We are here to celebrate the successes that these developments have achieved around the country, as well as to discuss the many innovative ways to ensure the long-term sustainability of service centers in a world that is rapidly focusing on permanent housing.

For those of you new to the Mall Network, let us share how we came to be here today.

IN THE BEGINNING

In 2005, the Network was just a small collaborative consisting of county representatives, a few cities, and a handful of service providers. Our focus was simple - to reshape our continuum of homeless services to best meet client and community needs. As we talked to other communities around the country, it became obvious that we shared many of the same challenges and could learn from each other.

PROGRESS

In 2006, the Network brought over twelve cities and three counties together in Southern California to discuss how to integrate homeless services, strengthen linkages to permanent supportive housing, and create a framework which integrates strategies for client intervention and engagement. This was the first time so many cities and counties had ever gathered together to address this important issue. It resulted in the formation of two key objectives:

- 1) To support a multi-service center approach in which services are co-located and fully integrated as part of the larger community; and
- 2) To encourage information exchange, collaboration and partnership opportunities with participating Mall Network members across the country.

GROWTH

In 2007, our Southern California network was joined by Northern California communities with a vision to invite other communities around the country to a National Mall Network Summit. This year, our objective is to expand the number of Mall Network communities both locally and nationally. This expansion will provide additional opportunities for learning, partnership and information exchange, as well as create a voice of support for vital support service providers.

TODAY

We planned this event with you in mind and hope you are inspired by the people you meet and the information you receive. Watch for more information on www.mallnetwork.org.

Sincerely,

Mall Network Summit Host Committee

SESSION ONE

BUILDING SUPPORT IN PERMANENT HOUSING

Moderator: Kelly Kent
Strategic Partnerships • Corporation for Supportive Housing

As communities implement Multi-Service Centers as a single point of entry into the continuum of homeless services, parallel planning is required to ensure individuals and families will be referred to stable, long-term housing options.

Many models exist to provide housing for people who are homeless. The key to success is developing effective services in conjunction with housing to assist individuals in maintaining housing.

Key questions and issues to be discussed in this session are:

- Defining housing: What are the various models of permanent housing?
- Defining services: What services are necessary?
- How services are delivered: Should services be offered onsite/offsite/through home visits?
- What assets and resources do service providers possess in reshaping the “service” role in permanent housing?

SESSION TWO

MULTI-SERVICE CENTERS AS A COMMUNITY “HOME BASE”

Moderator: John Maceri
Executive Director • OPCC

In an effort to improve coordination and leverage limited resources, communities across the country are developing multi-service centers that serve as a regional “home base.”

Key questions and issues to be discussed in this session include:

- What did the service delivery system look like before and after the implementation of Multi-Service Center(s)?
- How have MSCs helped improve the community?
- Strategies to bring service agencies together.
- Challenges and operational struggles, and how they can be overcome.

SESSION THREE

MOBILIZING COMMUNITY WILL

Moderator: Elise Buik
President & CEO • United Way of Greater Los Angeles

Without community organizing, the effectiveness, legitimacy, and staying power of critical support services and housing development organizations are limited. However, with the proper guidance and organization, communities can learn to build the political will to change policies that impede the progress of much needed community resources.

This session will discuss how to build support for community development projects serving homeless individuals and families.

Key issues to be discussed in this session are:

- Knowing your audience.
- Dispelling myths and misconceptions.
- Investing in cost effective measures.
- Knowing your outcomes and having measurable results.

A MILE IN MY SHOES

Finding your way around town can be challenging in any city, especially if you have no car, no money and are at the brink of desperation. For the homeless men, women and families in our communities, the difficult task of navigating through both the transportation and social service systems in order to find help is a stark reality. Services are scattered throughout the city. Transportation systems can be unreliable and exhaustively time-consuming. Often times, the many barriers homeless individuals encounter in the process become insurmountable.

Through “A Mile in My Shoes,” we have the special opportunity to follow in the footsteps of a family in urgent need of help. Their story is not unlike the real-life stories and challenges experienced each day by the 90,000 homeless individuals in Los Angeles. As we walk alongside the family in their search for a place to sleep for the night, food and a permanent home, we gain new insights into the tremendous challenges and frustrations that homeless families and individuals in our city face – and the tremendous courage, stamina and perseverance that must accompany the journey.

SECRETARY ALPHONSO JACKSON

US DEPARTMENT OF HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT

Secretary Alphonso Jackson is guiding the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) in its mission of providing affordable housing and promoting economic development, an assignment to which he brings more than 25 years of direct experience in both the private and public sectors.

Immediately preceding his appointment at HUD, Jackson served as President of American Electric Power-TEXAS, a $13 billion utility company located in Austin, Texas.

From January 1989 until July 1996, Secretary Jackson was President and CEO of the Housing Authority of the City of Dallas, Texas, which consistently ranked as one of the best-managed large-city housing agencies in the country during his tenure. Prior to that, Secretary Jackson was Director of the Department of Public and Assisted Housing in Washington, D.C., and also served as Chairperson for the District of Columbia Redevelopment Land Agency Board.

In 1977, Jackson became the Director of Public Safety for the City of St. Louis. Secretary Jackson holds a bachelor's degree in political science and a master's degree in education administration from Truman State University. He received his law degree from Washington University School of Law.

An expert on public housing and urban issues, Jackson has been asked to serve on a number of national and state commissions, most notably the General Services Commission of the State of Texas, where he served as Chairman; the National Commission on America's Urban Families, and the National Commission on Severely Distressed Public Housing.
